

Date
21-04-2020

B.Ed-I

Sub - Pedagogy of English

Importance of language  $\Rightarrow$  In human life language has manifold importance. Man is a social being. He has to communicate with other persons of the society. He wants not only to express himself but also to listen & understand the feelings of others. This interaction is the necessity of social life & it is possible only through language. Language is basic to our culture. It is through language which we are able to understand ourselves & others. We are able to know our culture & culture of others. It is very difficult to imagine man's life without language.

- I. A language is more than a means for people or nations to communicate with other people or nations. The language of a country is the heart of its civilization.
- II. The importance of language in human life has to be sought for in its. Language is an essential pre-requisite for human growth & development. It is very difficult to imagine man's life without language.

III. Language plays an important role in giving affection to the child. It is a means of socialising the child who in his own turn displays affection for his fellow creatures through language and other actions.

IV. Language is basic for preservation of our ideas for posterity. It also helps in the construction of new ideas & formulation of new concepts. In this sense, language is not only facilitative, to communicative purpose but also directive to thought and reproduction.